Given $\overline{CE} \equiv \overline{DB}$ $\angle AEC \equiv \angle ADB$

Prove: $\triangle CAD \equiv \triangle BAE$

Statement	Reason
1) $\overline{CE} \equiv \overline{DB}$	1)

Converse of Pythagorean Theorem

congruent triangles have three equal sides and corners equal to each other. For example $3 \times 4 = 12$, multiplied by two will give you 6,10,12, which is a triple of pythagora. Revision: the entire represent the lengths of the triangles in the order (A, B, C. CPCTC stands for corresponding parts of congruent triangles are congruent. Thus, we cannot apply the CPCTC theorem for similar triangles. Solution: First, we demonstrate that $\angle 3PQR \cong \angle 3SOR$, $PR = RS$ (given) $QR \cong QR$ (common side) $\angle QRP \cong \angle QRS$ (since QR is perpendicular to PS) therefore, $\triangle 3PQR \cong \triangle 3SOR$ (SAS policy) $pq \cong q$ (by p c p c t o now like $pq \cong q$ then, $4y = 28$ answer $4y = 7$ unit value more) Go to slide to slide Do you have questions about basic mathematical concepts? Keywords: ... tripla-a rectangle pythagorine triangle where the sides are in the relationship of the entire. AB corresponds to LM, BC corresponds to MN, AC corresponds to LN. Therefore, $FE = ml$. And if $\angle 3ABC \cong \angle 3LMN$, then according to the CPCTC theorem, the sides and corresponding angles are the same, ie $AB = LM$, $BC = MN$, $AC = LN$, and $A = L$, $B = M$, $C = N$.
